TRAVEL IN CHINA

China's tourism industry has improved dramatically over the last decade. However, air and land transportation and other facilities may not always meet international standards. In addition your hosts want to show you as much of their country as possible, so the schedule will be demanding with moderate physical activity. Due to the high elevations, altitude sickness can happen to anyone regardless of your age and health condition. Most visitors to Tibet will experience some symptoms that will generally disappear through acclimation. Travel in China requires good physical condition and health, a spirit of adventure, a flexible attitude and a sense of humor. The itinerary is subject to change and modification. Every effort will be made to carry out the program as planned, but alterations may still occur. Participants should be aware that no refunds would be made as a result of unforeseen changes, modifications, or delays.
